October Wedding Bells and Their Welcome Peals.

But the List Seems Shorter Than

OTHER NEWSY TOPICS

attention, and the activity already started

the next month or six weeks. Beginning with the marriage of Miss Bessie Pinckney Mitchell and Mr. Alexander P. Shaw, Monweek's wedding list is of great importance to those who regard such an event as the great one of a lifetime. Wednesday, as usual, has a longer program than any other day. At St. Paul's Church, 15th and V streets, at noon, Miss Catherine Dyer, laughter of Dr. John I. Dyer, and Mr. Richard Henry Bowling of Prince George's county, will be married. The officiating clergyman will be Rev. Dr. Dyer, president of St. Joseph's Seminary, Yonkers, N. Y., brother of the bride. Two afternoon weddings of that day will be those of Miss Grave Covington Tydings, daughter of Mr and Mrs. John H. Tydings, and Mr. William A. Sladen at the Pro-Cathedral Church of St. Mark, 5 o'clock, and of Miss Julia A. Harrington and Mr. Charles V. Bechtel at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, the Church of the Immaculate Conception, at 5:30. At 6:30 the same evening Miss Mamie Clokey and Mr. Henry Edgar Stauffer will be married at Foundry Church, and at the Church of the Epiphany Miss Gertrude Mary Frost and Dr. Howard Carlisle Russell of the United States marine hospital service will be the happy couple, and their marriage will be followed by a reception at the Riggs House, from 8 until 10 o'clock. The last week of October holds several very interesting occasions of the same kind. On the 26th the marriage of Miss Parke and Mr. Richards of New York and of Miss Carson and Dr. Macdonald will be both noon home events. At St. Patrick's Church, on the 27th, Miss Marian Lee Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Morgan, and Mr. Wilfred Seymour Mc-P. Morgan, and Mr. Wilfred Seymour Mc Leod will be married at 5 o'clock.

After the brides, the next claimants for social attentions in the way of flowers and good wishes will be the debutantes. Unless signs count for nothing, the number will be unusually small this winter, for, up to date, one hears very little said on the subject. The list last season was so long that it might be hinted that the market was somewhat overstocked only such a stateit might be hinted that the market was somewhat overstocked, only such a statement would be in the very worst possible taste. But the buds this year will not suffer from any such drawback, and the 5 o'clock teas of the last month of the year, at which these charming young travelers for society's high road will make their start, will be sufficiently far apart to make each a distinct occasion. The inroads made by matrimony among last year's buds have not left a marked defection in their ranks; but to tell how this may be remedied before the coming new girls are presented but to tell how this may be remedied before the coming new girls are presented would be betraying secrets.

Among this winter's buds will be Miss Marie McKenna, second daughter of the Attorney General; the Misses Bates, daughters of Major Bates, Miss Colton, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Francis Colton, and the Misses Geneyieve and Winifred Mattingly.
There are several other names which could be added to this now, but their fair owners prefer to postpone taking the world into their confidence until nearer the fateful date.
